GREAT MOMENTS IN TIC-TAC-TOE

After a brilliant opening maneuver, Timmy "X-KID" Janowitz felt he had the game all locked up, but was countered by Jon-Jon "The Big O" Oswald. Jon-Jon's use of the infamous "Ha-Ha, Faked You Out, Ya Big Weenie" stratagem caused the X-KID to slip up and take that road to nowhere! The Big O went on to take a tic-tac-toehold and win the game. Their subsequent battles on the XO field of honor paled in comparison with this shining display of sportsmanship and valor.

CORRECTION

The Clair Township map we ran last month purporting to show the area roads closed for construction turns out to have actually been a file photo of Frank Sinatra's old hair transplant. If drivers can simply remember that each red spot is a barricade and that the mole in the upper left corner corresponds with the township incinerator, they should still get to where they want to go with a minimum of congestion.

VIERING OFF by Jed Vier

As a Weapon, Rubber Lances Were Not Very Effective

Sarge, why did you kill all the villagers?
They were on our side!

Don't worry, I saved 2 for you. Kill them, so I can cut off their body parts and make another necklace. This one is
'The Eyes Have It' and this is
'The Nose Knows.' Waste 'em!
That's an order!

What's that?

An order is a command given by a superior officer or by a diner to a waiter. Example: "I'll have the fruit cup."

I know what an order is,
but I refuse to kill innocent people.

Do I have to do everything myself?

The number one action movie of the summer has a great beginning in which the 2 stars kill each other during the opening credits. Unfortunately, these 2 stiffs are brought back to life and the film turns into the typical blood, violence and car chase shlock, which is why we call our version

UNIVERSAL SHLOCKER

This feature has a bad attitude and a lousy script.

WRITER: RICH KRIEGAL
ARTIST: WALTER BROGAN

I guess you could say they were killed by friendly fire.

If that was friendly fire I'd hate to see unfriendly fire. I wonder what they were smiling about?

I'm smiling because I get to play a dead guy; finally, a role that suits my acting talent.

Yeah, me too.

Americans are killing each other; no wonder they losing war. Yaaiiee!

'25 YEARS LATER'

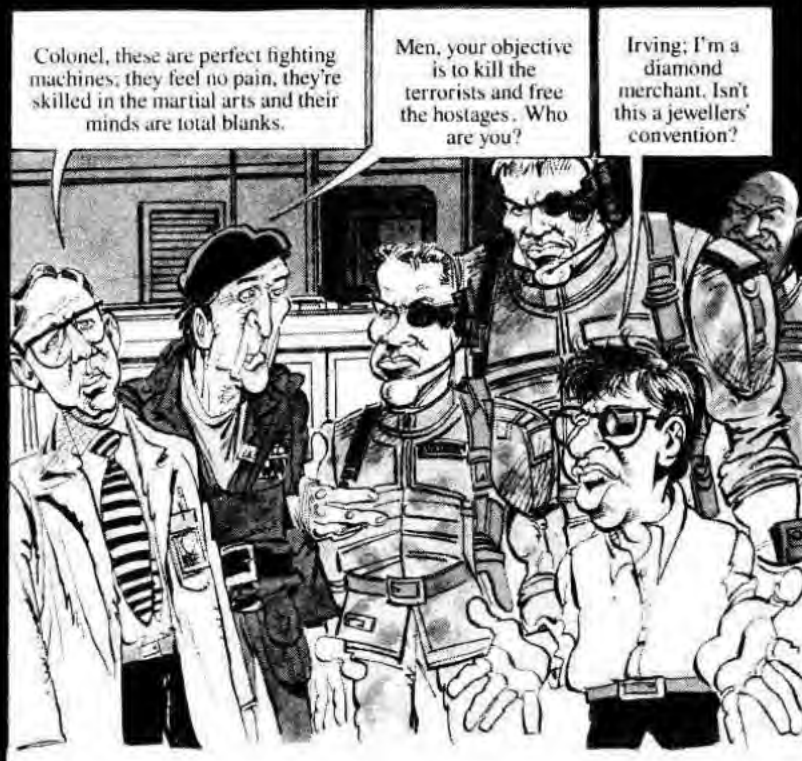

This is Moronica Rabbitt with an exclusive, live interview with one of the terrorists holding 33 hostages. Sir, what are your demands?

We want our comrades freed from jail, and a jet plane.

Are you going to fly to Algeria?

No, Disney World. Terrorists like to have fun like everyone else.

Colonel, these are perfect fighting machines; they feel no pain, they're skilled in the martial arts and their minds are total blanks.

Men, your objective is to kill the terrorists and free the hostages. Who are you?

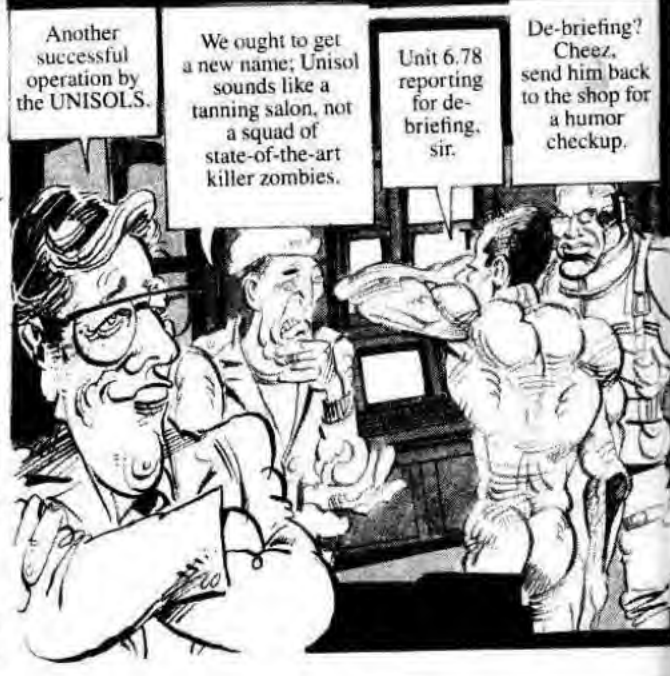

Irving, I'm a diamond merchant. Isn't this a jewellers' convention?

Waste him.

The mission is going as planned, except for Unit 666, who is killing the hostages and Unit 6.78 who is suffering from flashbacks.

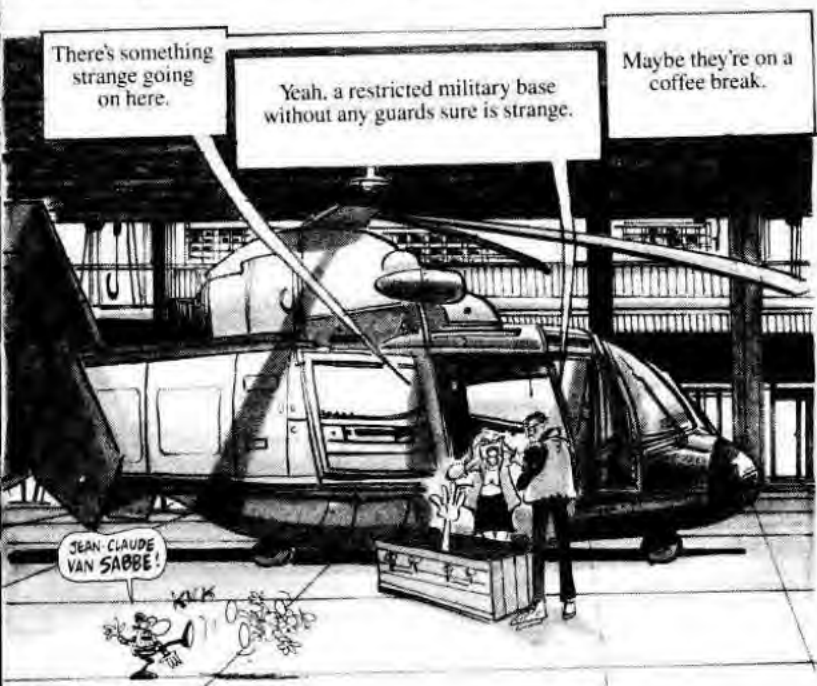

Another successful operation by the UNISOLS.

We ought to get a new name; Unisol sounds like a tanning salon, not a squad of state-of-the-art killer zombies.

Unit 6.78 reporting for de-briefing, sir.

De-briefing? Cheez, send him back to the shop for a humor checkup.

There's something strange going on here.

Yeah, a restricted military base without any guards sure is strange.

Maybe they're on a coffee break.

Colonel, we have intruders, and they're taking pictures.

We don't have any pictures. This is a military installation, not a museum.

No, they're taking pictures with a camera.

Waste 'em!

Give me the film.

My God, you shot him! Somebody help me!

I would, except I'm having a flashback.

Sorry, but I always take my film to Fotomat.

Why are you helping me escape?

I'm not sure. Wait, pull into that motel.

That figures: you soldiers are all alike.

Usually, when I go to a motel and a guy takes off his clothes, he jumps into bed, not an ice cooler.

Nice buns.

Thank you, Mother, I baked them myself.

Is there a back door to this place?

No.

There is now.

They escaped!

They got into their car and went bye-bye.

Mission cancelled. YAAAAIIIEE!

Wrong, you're cancelled. I'm in charge now.

This guy is full of surprises. He pulls the old "We're outta gas" bit, but instead of making a move on me, he gets out and pushes the car.

Chief, you won't believe this. A car went by doing 50 miles an hour.

Frank, that's within the speed limit.

I know, but it's being pushed by a naked man.

Frank, I think you need a vacation.

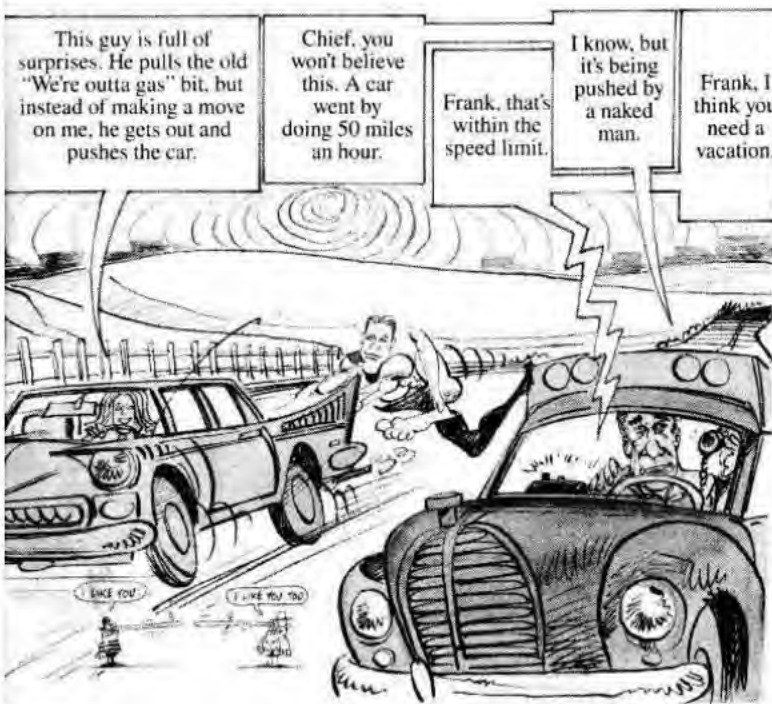

I guess all that pushing made you hungry. When was the last time you ate?

1969.

When was the last time you were with a girl?

1969.

No wonder you took that ice cube bath.

Why is he trashing the joint?

Well, he hasn't kicked anybody in the face since 1969. That was the last time he ate, too.

Cheez, I hope he doesn't want to use the men's room.

Buckle up; do you know how many people are killed by failing to use seatbelts? And stop smoking; the Surgeon General says that can be hazardous to your health.

Just being with you is hazardous to my health.

I guess that's what's known as "trucking on down."

The Colonel was right; you'd better go back to the shop and have your humor chip adjusted.

No, I'm going home to see my parents. But first we'll pay a visit to the doctor in charge of Operation Unisol.

We were conducting experiments to help men facing mid-life crises. We attempted to turn dead flesh into living tissue. And we succeeded beyond our wildest dreams! We were able to turn dead bodies into living people, but they ran extremely high temperatures.

That explains the ice.

Master, I have a fresh brain.

You'll have to excuse me; I'm working on a new experiment.

I bet they're going to be surprised. Hi, Mom. Hi, Dad.

It's a ghost! ARGGG GHhh!

They were surprised alright. I'm sorry, but they've gone to that big farm in the sky.

Maybe I should have called first, or sent a postcard.

I've got another surprise for you, soldier.

I order you to kill this girl.

Here I go again, having flashbacks.

Idiot, this is no flashback. This sucker is for real.

Let the girl go and let's settle this like men, or zombies or cyborgs or whatever.

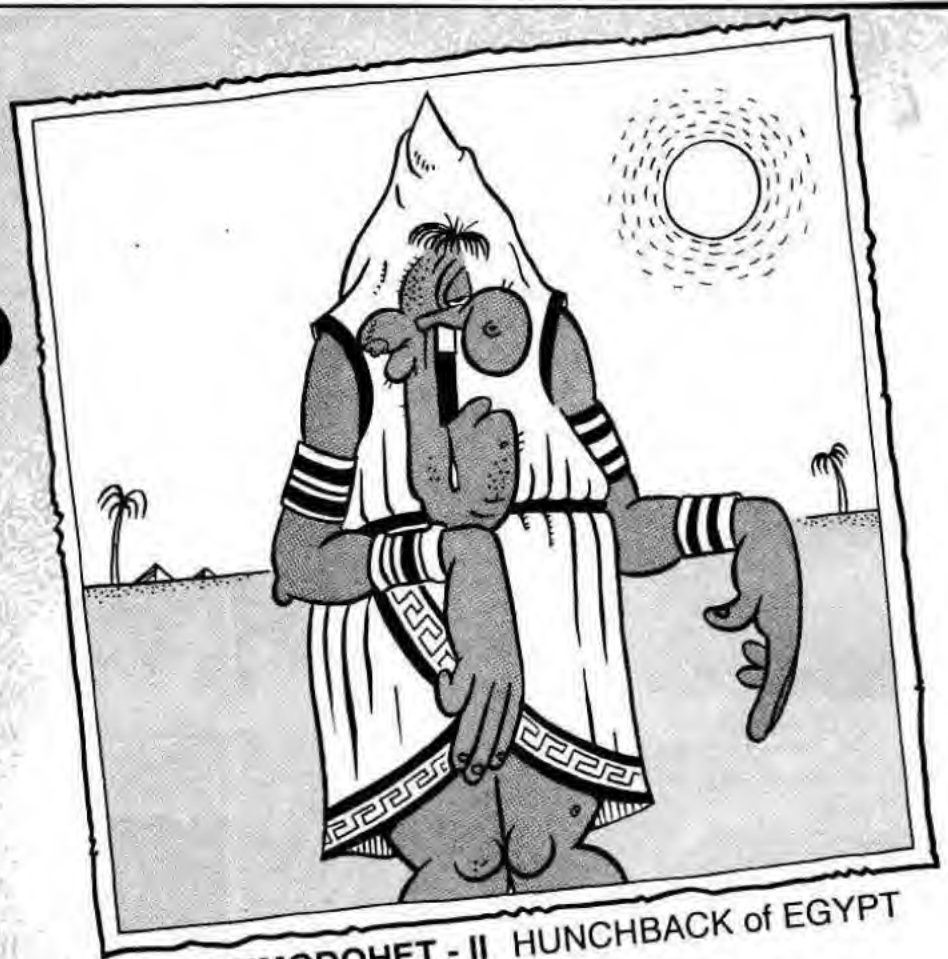

NOTE: The next scene is so stupid we decided to skip it.

How stupid is it? Well, the Sarge chucks a grenade at Moronica, scores a direct hit and guess what? She's not even scratched!

nun's THE WORD!

WRITER: Andrew Osborne
ARTIST: Rurik Tyler

Beverly Hills Nun-0210

Shannon Doherty stars as a sister who moves from the Midwest to a swank Beverly Hills convent, where she must overcome impure thoughts, bingo addiction and other unfashionable habits.

Teenage Mutant Nun-ja Turtles

Four ordinary turtles are accidentally dropped into a vat of radioactive holy water, and escape into the sewers beneath the Vatican, where they mutate into giant, celibate crime-fighters who eat pepperoni communion wafer-pizzas with extra cheese.

Rosary-anne

A loud, crass, working-class mother leaves her loud, crass, working-class family to devote her life to God. (Tom Arnold co-stars as the Supreme Being.)

Nun and Stimpy

A big, dumb cat irritates a small, yapping nun in a cartoon series that Nickelodeon plans to run into the ground.

Nun-ook of the North

A nearsighted Eskimo woman leaves her village to join the convent, but winds up living with a family of penguins. Heartwarming family fun for all.

Nun-forgiven

A mysterious Nun With No Name rides into the one-horse town of Catechism Chasm and turns a hail of bullets into Hail Marys.

Nun-zilla

A gigantic, prehistoric nun decimates Tokyo.

Nun's World

Nun's World! Communion Time! Excellent! Sister Mary Wayne and her friend Sister Agnes Garth are the most excellent hosts of this cable access show broadcast from the basement of their house of worship in suburban Illinois. Schwing!

Ter-nun-ator II: Judgment Day

After a shaky start with Co-nun the Barbarian, Sister Mary Arnold Schwarzenegger achieved stardom as an unstoppable robot nun in the original Ter-nun-ator. Now she's back, facing her greatest challenge: Prom Night at Cardinal Spellman Memorial High School.

Nun-bo

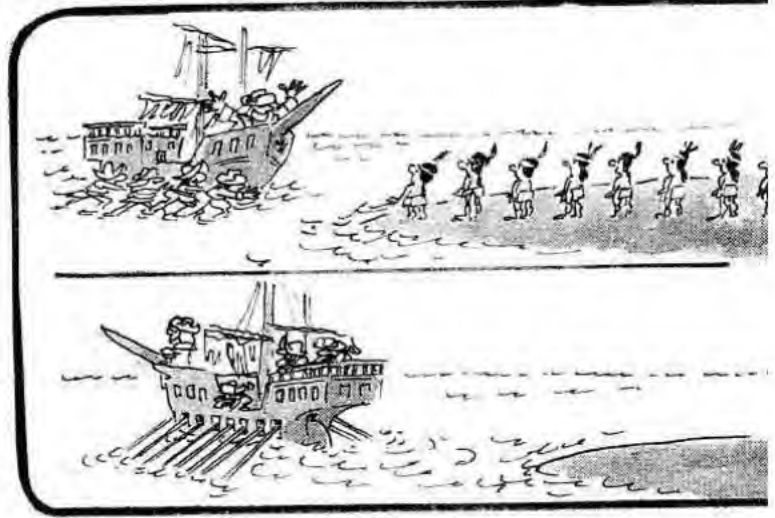

A baby elephant with enormous ears runs away from the circus and hides in a convent, disguised as a nun.

HOW BUNGEE JUMPING WORKS

It takes a special kind of person to bungee jump—a crazy one.

As the bungee cord unwinds, its elasticity is stretched to the limit. This is the most exciting part of all. Will the cord break?

No! The bungee cord did not tear from the pressure. However, make sure the cord is the right length.

HOW A BANK CARD WORKS

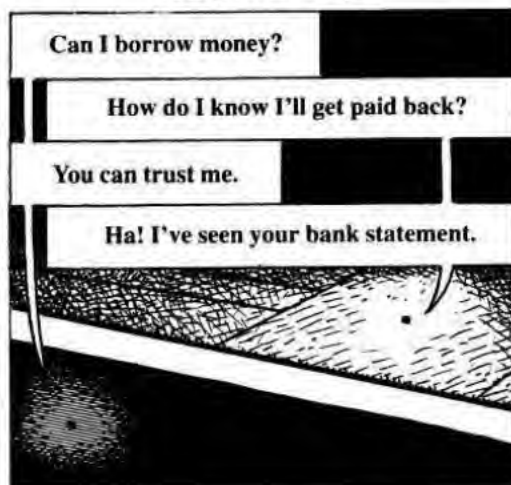

By inserting your bank card into the slot, you gain access to a wide range of financial services through the bank's cash system.

A magnetic strip runs the length of the bank card. In the middle of the strip is a micro-chip with thousands of bits of information.

The card chip talks to the main computer chip.

Unfortunately, this process may take some time.

HOW A RADIO WORKS

Ever wonder exactly how the irritating voice of your favorite "shock jock" comes to you every morning? Well, read this anyway.

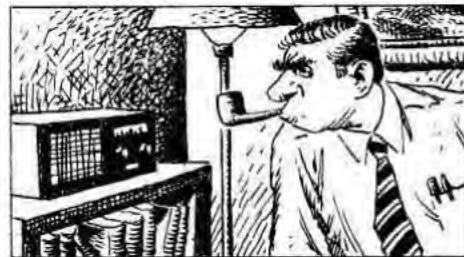

Shock jock spews out his usual barrage of insults, dirty stuff and rock music.

The amplified sound is fed to a radio transmitter where the signals disperse modulated waves. People who abuse drugs have been known to stare at radio towers for hours in hopes of seeing the waves.

The waves are picked up by a radio, which translates the modulated signal back into a sound signal which can be heard by human ears, including those of the self-appointed guardians of the airwaves, who feel it's their duty to protect us from our favorite shows.

They write to the program's sponsors, who panic and cancel the shock jock, which just goes to prove the old saying, "The pen is mightier than the radio."

HOW TO TURN ON YOUR VCR WHEN YOU'RE NOT HOME
BY USING A BIMBO,
A CROOKED
POLITICIAN, A CAT,
AND AN INDIAN
CAB DRIVER!

Bimbo on treadmill sees her reflection in mirror and walks towards it, turning treadmill.

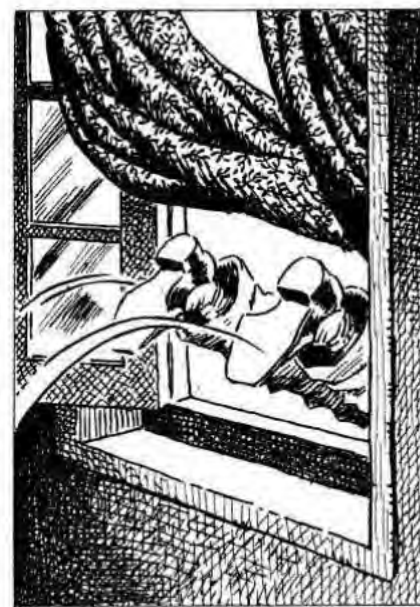

Treadmill turns gears which are attached to drill bit on floor.

In apartment directly below this one, crooked senator is receiving payment from the mob. Senator sees drill bit coming through ceiling and assumes it is a surveillance team from the FBI.

Senator jumps out window.

Senator lands on platform which unlatches bird in cage.

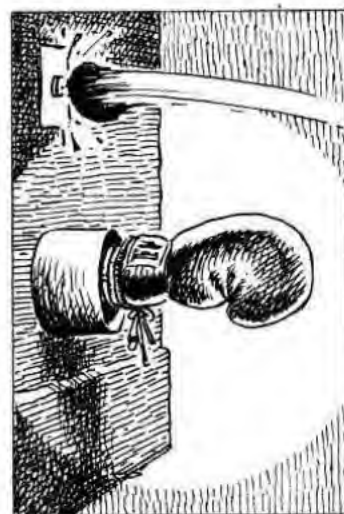

Cat in window sees bird flying past and also jumps out window.

Departing cat frees weight suspended from perch. Weight falls and lands on miniature seesaw, which propels rock through air.

Rock hits switch on spring-powered boxing glove.

Boxing glove fires forward and hits air horn.

Retired Indian cab driver, listening to funny music, hears horn and instinctively gives someone the finger.

Cab driver's hand presses lever, which depresses record button on VCR.

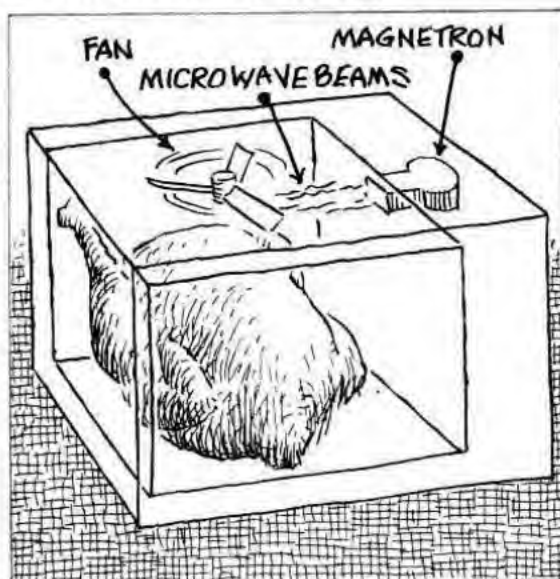

HOW A
WAVE
OVEN
WORKS

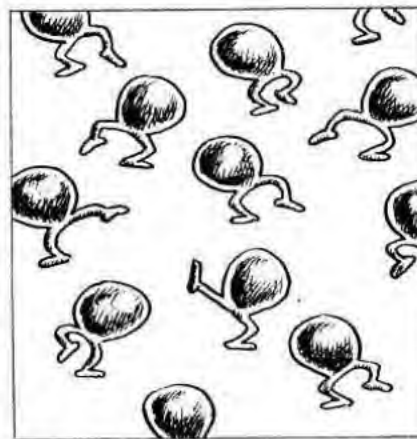

Many people believe that a microwave is a gesture that a small child makes when saying goodbye, but this is simply not true.

A microwave is a high-frequency radio wave that can cook turkeys.

The microwave causes the water molecules in the food to dance around like crazy, producing heat. You'd dance around too if somebody was microwaving your buns.

Thanks to the wonder of science, a meal prepared in a microwave oven can be burned in half the time it takes to burn it in a conventional oven!

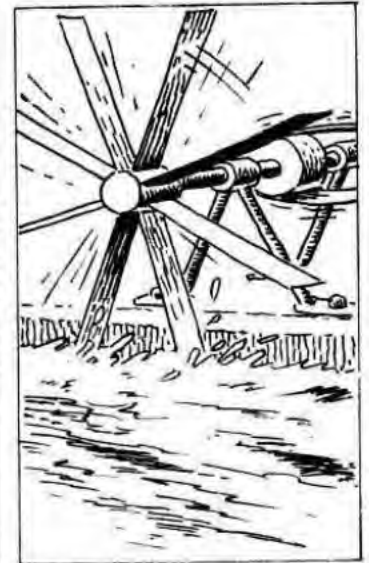

DO-IT-YOURSELF AIR CONDITIONER

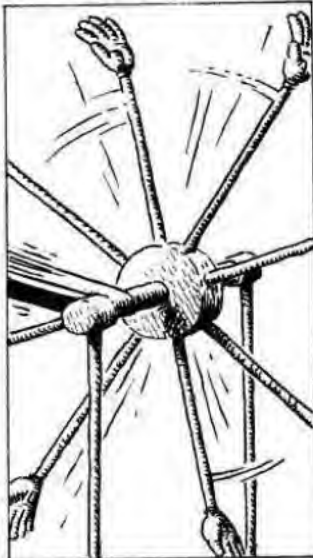

Broken fire hydrant produces water.

Water turns paddle wheels.

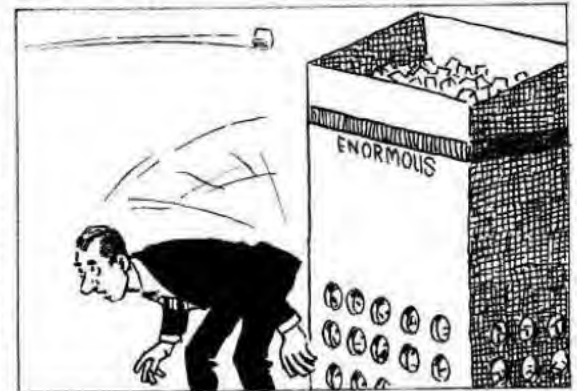

Paddle wheels turn "spanking machine."

Bimbo, who has been told to stand on this corner because producer from the TV show 'Studs' is due to come by this spot, receives slap from spanking machine.

Each time that she is spanked, angry bimbo picks up ice cube and throws it at Playboy Dude who never called her again after last date.

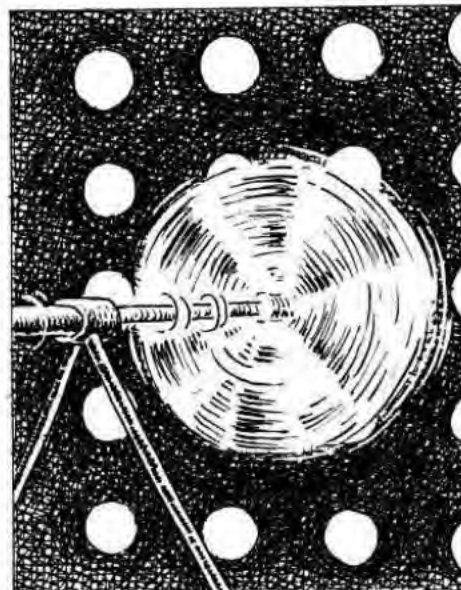

Playboy dude ducks and ice lands in enormous icebox.

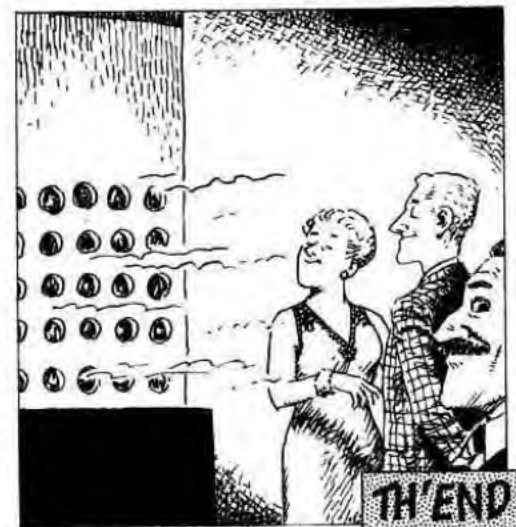

Rat in cage, trying to keep warm, runs on tread wheel, which causes fan to spin.

Fan pushes air through air holes in icebox, cooling air.

Cool air flows into room, creating quite comfortable conditions for wealthy people inside.

We got lucky: one dude bailed out. Now if the other 2 suckers would only do the same, we might end up with a decent president for a change.

This is Eddie Smurphy saying good night for SICKLY MINUTES, and good luck. Hey, we're gonna need it.

Did you ever notice how the candidates get worse every year? These three ain't exactly Washington, Lincoln and Jefferson, you know. They're more like Larry, Curly and Moe. But let's face it, one of these suckers is gonna be our next President.

And now, a few minutes with Eddie Smurphy.

That's the first honest answer in this article.

Forget it. I'm a politician, and politicians don't dare to tell the truth.

Cheez, I can't get a straight answer from you. How about a game of Truth or Dare?

Alcohol is legal, thanks to the 21st Amendment.

When you smoked pot, you claimed you didn't inhale. When you have a drink, do you swallow?

Quayle isn't allowed to see R-rated films.

HATA AVARA, PCS!

Why doesn't Quayle complain about Schwarzenegger's movie?

Just look at this film clip: those are police officers he's shooting.

I'm talking about Arnold Schwarzenegger.

The entire Murphy Brown incident was a smokescreen to cover up the alarming fact that a member of the White House inner circle is responsible for the violence in our cities and the L.A. riots.

Rodney King works in the White House?

That's not the position they're interested in, believe me. If you gotta talk politics, the only thing people really showed an interest in was Murphy Brown.

Actually, I think the American voter is more interested in my position on the issues.

No, your love life. Like, was Cennifer the first babe you cheated with?

You mean my comprehensive tax plan?

Guy, let's get to the stuff the public is dying to hear.

What would you do about the deficit?

I'd do what any sensible businessman would do: when faced with trillions of dollars in red ink, I'd file for bankruptcy.

Is it true you politicians get lots of babes? Man, if a weirdo like you can get babes, I just might get into politics.

I'm tired of people with your dirty minds. I'm outta the droppin' race.

Yeah, sure. Man, you're no Frank Perdue, you're chicken.

You claim you're a self-made man, but you made most of your money processing Medicaid claims for the government. I guess that's why they call you the first welfare billionaire.

Well, my daddy told me that if a heifer gives milk, make sure you skim the cream off the top.

I was gonna have a cow," Don't say, "Don't have a cow," but the heck with it.

Shore, I made some money off Uncle Sam, but I worked for it.

Did you get those juicy contracts from the government because you were the lowest bidder?

'Course not, usually I was the highest bidder. I know how to get mine, and that's the kind of leadership we need in the White House.

That's the kind we already got.

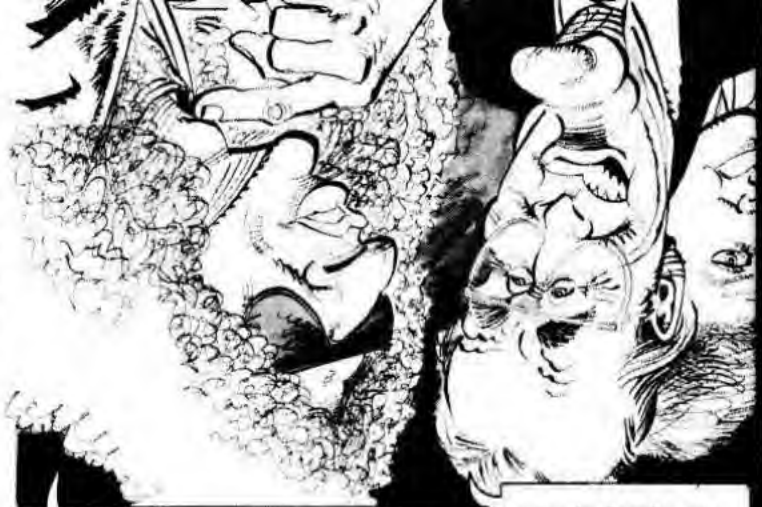

Okay, Mr. Peroutte, let's talk about the issues.

Bart, the American people are fed up with all that talk about issues and position papers. That's just politicians' hot air. I'm a businessman, not a politician.

You sure answer questions like a politician.

Speaking of families, Howard, I strongly resent Pirovete investigating my sons.

Right. He shouldn't be investigating them, the FBI should. Your sonny boy cost the taxpayers billions of bucks in that S & L ripoff.

Some drop, 3 billion dollars. I think young Neil should stick to the hango.

I want Neil to be my vice-president. It isn't easy finding someone who makes me look good.

Now let's just put this thing in perspective. The S & L misunderstanding is going to cost the taxpayers 500 billion dollars, so the few dollars my sons S & L lost, through no fault of his own, is only a drop in the bucket.

Nice shot, Mr. President, you got a quail. Ah, I wonder if we're related?

Doesn't it bug you, trailing dudes like Pirovete and Clinton in the polls? You've got a worse approval rating than Nixon.

And that was after Watergate.

I don't like to whine and complain, Howard, but this is another example of how fickle the American people are. After I won the Gulf War, my approval rating was sky-high, but now, because the media keeps harping on a slight economic downturn, the people turn against me.

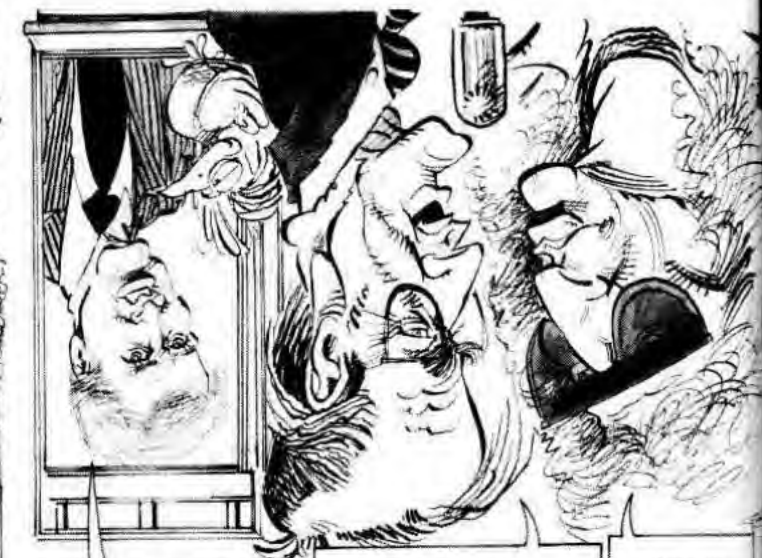

Slight downturn? Man, that's like saying Mike Tyson has a slight problem with babes. There are millions of people out of work.

Well, everybody in my family is employed.

Mine, too; sons are working as Senate pages.

See, the jobs are out there, all you need is a little ambition and initiative.

Where's the first dog?

I regret to say, I had him put to s-l-e-e-p.

That's s-l-e-e-p-e.

Man, just because his book outsold yours is no reason to waste the mull.

It wasn't that. My investigators found out that he had more affairs than Bull Clinton. If the tabloids ever got ahold of that, it could harm my reelection bid.

You can call me Bubba, and hey-I gotta get me one of them horn-of-plenty bras for Gennifer. I mean, Hillary.

This is Muddonna in Little Rock with Gov. Bull Clinton.

Aw heck, I got the wrong dude. Man, anybody could make that mistake.

It takes a tough man to make a tender chicken.

This is Barf Simpleson in Texas with H. Ross Pirouette.

Yeah, and the value of your family has really gone up since you've been in the White House.

Howard, I'm a great believer in family values.
